AMERICAN FOLKLIFE CENTER

October 22, 1982

Dear Mary Ann Anders:

Many thanks for forwarding to me the photographs and short biography of Nathan Edward Galloway and his artistic park in Foyil, Oklahoma. It is a wonderful example of what some people now call environmental art, and it held an even more special interest for me, since I am a fiddler.

The American Folklife Center has been trying to keep track of the number of such examples of environmental art or environmental folk art, and has been in touch with a number of people around the country about their documentation and preservation. I am delighted to add the photographs of Mr. Galloway and his work to our files, and I appreciate your thinking of us.

Sincerely yours,
