Dear Seymour,

Thank you for including Thompson's Garden in the Summer '81 issue of SPACES! It made me very proud!

I've gotten a mad cap idea - I'm thinking of Oliver Stone. He directs "slice of life" films like Born 4th of July, Wall Street - I want him to do a film about our wonderful art environments. Possibly Cactus Charlie Kastling - and his friend. I think it is fabulous material, and there could be a touch of documentary - or not. But it would pull the heart strings to see the piece

Rov has - how fragile it is - and the fact that it represents the major part of Kaellings work which is surviving today.

The desert scenes could be dramatic - as Hollywood can do it - with great lighting - They can have alot of elements to make it palatable to our tasteful public - but it would carry a whollop - especially when they show the ravaged site blowing in the desert breezes.

Do you have any contacts? Do you like the idea? The Olympic Games in Barcelona will awaken many to the art of Gaudi - but I think something should happen here, as well - I think of Anthony Quinn & Kirk Douglas. although it could be younger actors.

P.S. Another article in the Republic & Gazette. I sent 4 copies. I notice I've expired - check enclosed.
