Dear Seymour,

A bit of the wind is out of my sails - Thinking that it will take another 15 years before Phoenix will think about recognizing the Garden. Also, I've had a bit more of a struggle with the local kids - trying to keep them out of the Garden - and some vandalism - (Thank goodness - not in the Garden) and then, I've come to realize that if the Garden is given recognition as a historic site, I think I would be required to insure it; and I'm afraid I don't have sufficient funds to be able to afford that - so I guess things are as they should be.

In the meanwhile, I toy with the idea of finding another city to take the Garden and preserve it.
The expense would be great, and there is the chance that some pieces might be damaged or lost; but I would like to see it in a place where it was appreciated.

It seems to me that the younger generation is being brought up to be nothing but savages. How is that for a dim view?

I got another idea about the Archives! To have holograms of the different sites so people could walk around and see details, just as though they were there!

My best wishes to you!

Cyrion

P.S. Thank you for such a handsome letterhead!
