Dear Peterson's Rock Garden:

We are a national organization concerned with finding and saving large outdoor constructions. Our archives serve scholars and the media who are interested in wonderful things built by people.

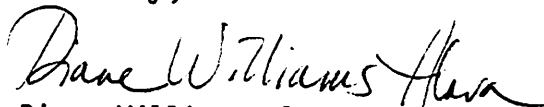

As part of our on-going search for sites, we ran a photograph of a post card showing Rasmus Peterson's Rock Garden in our newsletter. We asked if anyone could tell us the location of the garden. Happily, several of our readers wrote to tell us where you are located, including a man from the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C. and a librarian at the Oregon Historical Society.

We would like to feature the gardens in our next newsletter, and although we have some information on Peterson's we would like to request any materials you might have. Post cards, current or older, would be useful to us as would biographical information on Mr. Peterson and photographs of him and/or the gardens. We also need to know what the status of the garden is now, how many visitors see the garden yearly and if you are equipped to handle more visitors.

Enclosed is a copy of our last newsletter. The garden is mentioned on page six. We will happily send you a copy of our upcoming issue as soon as it is published.

Thank you for your help. We look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Diane Williams Hlava
