Dear Jocelyn,

Thank you for submitting the two versions of the proposed text to us for our perusal. Both are quite accurate and express the person who was my father. We, as you, agree that the second version better expresses the content and the purpose of Litto's Hubcap Ranch.

The only change or correction I would suggest is the period of years in which my father was engaged in his art. It was closer to thirty years of endeavor that created the Hubcap Ranch; much of it was started in the fifties.

As for quotes, one that comes to mind is one often used by my father just after telling a story to a group of visitors that may or may not have been precisely accurate, "Can you imagine that?" He often merely liked to say "This is Litto's Place."

Sincerely,

Emanuele N. Damonte
